

This 1930 Colonial Revival house in Jamaica Plain had a big yard, but the lot sloped steeply downhill in back. So- it was hard to enjoy the yard, and it was remote from the first floor.

- The family wanted:
- Better views of their big back yard and to Boston skyline.
 - A back door closer to the garage, which is as low as the basement.
 - Nice outside areas at yard level.
 - A 1st floor plan with more openness, light and space.
 - A modern kitchen for casual dining.
 - A larger Lav. to add a wheelchair shower to in the future.
